

I wondered if anyone could advise me regarding the dark finish (almost black) that was applied to the beech handles and front buns on postwar Norris planes. I have heard it referred to as ebonized. I have one where most of the finish has gone and I would like to recoat it but I would only tackle it if I knew that the product was the same as was used originally. I will look forward to hearing from you.

Thank you,